

ADR_PLUS Indicator Guidance v1.0

NUMERICAL ADR SETTINGS

Disable Numerical ADR:

remove numerical adr values from chart.

Window Number:

number of a subwindow where numerical adr values is shown.

ADR Periods:

you can add as many as custom and arbitrary ADR Periods (separated by comma) here. add 0 for today, 1 for yesterday, 5 for '5 day' and so on.

ADR Percent Calculation:

you can select ADR Percent Calculation formula here.

A,B,C Values:

depending on 'ADR Percent Calculation' options, you must input at least 1 and at most 3 values in this input list (separated by comma) that these values must be present in 'ADR Periods' input list.

Low ADR Percent:

if ADR Percent reaches to this value, the color of it changes to whatever is chosen on “Color of Low ADR Percent”.

High ADR Percent:

if ADR Percent reaches to this value, the color of it changes to whatever is chosen on “Color of High ADR Percent”.

_____ VISUAL ADR SETTINGS _____

Disable Visual ADR:

remove all lines from chart.

Plot High and Low Periods:

via this input list, you can define at most two values (separated by comma). the first value can be 0 for Today High and Low and the second value can be 1 or larger number to plot High and Low for Yesterday or more days. some example:

0 draws High and Low of today only

0,1 draws High and Low of today and yesterday

0,5 draws High and Low of today and yesterday until 5 days ago

9 draws High and Low of yesterday until 9 days ago (without today High and Low Levels)

START POINT of High and Low Lines:

this setting contains 3 different options in a dropdown menu to define start point of high and low lines for today and yesterday levels only.

END POINT of High and Low Lines:

this setting contains 3 different options in a dropdown menu to define end point of high and low lines for today and yesterday levels only.

Bar's Number (Manual START POINT):

Define number of candle/bar if “Manually Adjust Bar's Number” selected in “START POINT of High and Low Lines” setting.

Bar's Number (Manual END POINT):

Define number of candle/bar if “Manually Adjust Bar's Number” selected in “END POINT of High and Low Lines” setting.

Plot ADR Periods:

via this input list, you can define at most two values (separated by comma). the first value can be 0 for Today ADR Levels and the second value can be 1 or larger number to plot ADR Levels for Yesterday or more days. some example:

0 draws ADR Levels of today only

0,1 draws ADR Levels of today and yesterday

0,5 draws ADR Levels of today and yesterday until 5 days ago

9 draws ADR Levels of yesterday until 9 days ago (without today ADR Levels)

Plot ADR History:

This setting contains two option to draw ADR 100% OR ADR Custom% for past days only.

Plot ADR Today:

This setting contains three option to draw ADR 100% AND/OR ADR Custom% for today only.

ADR Custom Percent:

Define custom percent for ADR Custom%.

START POINT of ADR Lines:

this setting contains 3 different options in a dropdown menu to define start point of ADR lines for today levels only.

END POINT of ADR Lines:

this setting contains 3 different options in a dropdown menu to define end point of ADR lines for today levels only.

Bar's Number (Manual START POINT):

Define number of candle/bar if "Manually Adjust Bar's Number" selected in "START POINT of ADR Lines" setting.

Bar's Number (Manual END POINT):

Define number of candle/bar if "Manually Adjust Bar's Number" selected in "END POINT of ADR Lines" setting.

ADR Alert:

There are 4 options in this setting to enable or disable alerts for ADR 100% AND/OR ADR Custom%. Alert works when Price crosses ADR High Target from down to up or Price crosses ADR Low Target from up to down.

Alert Once per Day:

Since set to true, Alert works once until end of day.