

12/13/2009 11:19:42 PM

UK PRESS

The Conservatives have opened up a polling.

UK PRESS: The Conservatives have opened up a polling lead of 17 points bringing an abrupt end to recent Labour hopes that the next election could result in a hung parliament the Independent reported at the weekend. David Cameron`s party is up two points on last month on 41 per cent while Labour has slipped one point to 24 per cent. The Liberal Democrats are up four points on 21.