Friends, I'm also waiting for the best entry point, please be patient, okay? because for me at this time, the value of 1 pip = $ 500. So I have to be very careful in making decisions. My target is to reach $ 1.5 million in the next 3 months (24 to 30 times opening positions).

But for you (19 friends) , you have to be calm in the transaction because your $ 1,000 account will be $ 2,000 after 12 entries, and after a year transacting will be $ 64,000.

So let's pray and hope for God's help.

Best regards,
Chris

Mix bag results why market is undecided on direction

Lets wait and see

Earnings dipping is big since it is one of the criteria Feds always looked. Unemployment not bad but it is red...

Job gain is huge and I suspect may have to do with winter temp holiday hires.

Keep in mind shorting this if not timed right is costly on swap.

I got sick of paying 45-75 a day on swap specially on weekends. Closed UC one of the culprits finally.

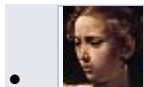

UJ is good spot but trade at your own discretion. UJ can hover for days..costing swap and drop out of nowhere.

Not much worth trading today. Well did make $1100 today so that's nice to start the week. I do anticipate Yen rebounding and love selling the Yen once prices get discounted. To me it's more important taking high probability trade than force something when the trades are not there. That's when mistakes happen-impatience

Hi guys

Had a great start for the Year. 16% gain Jan.Real happy with that.My base is 10% a month and anything above is gravy.

This week having red news on CAD on Friday end of the week basically means CAD will most likely take a beating which to me is welcomed since I like to short EC again and go long CJ at lower price so that's my rough plan A

AUD rate will remain same almost in certainty and may even be bullish depending on their outlook. Still AN long

Surprise here to me is NZD I anticipate less then stellar data and could go deeper correction specially on crosses like NJ which is welcomed since I like to buy NJ at lower prices.

Overall my focus will be J crosses and commodity pairs and USD should recover a bit after taking a ass whipping last week.

Stay green and sharp

Not everyone is an expert at reading and understanding financial data (i'm not for sure 😂) but reading on specific sites can help to get some little light so you can guess at least who?why,when?how? <https://www.dailyfx.com/forex/fundam...land-Jobs.html>

Although it has some good insights I also see lots of flaws. I prefer to do my own analyses. 🍺

Hi NG

Welcome.I appreciate your efforts coming back to pivots.Your trade kind of iffy.1st I don't look at TDI crosses but lets go along with it.Where it happened was 40+ pips above where you placed your shorts...beginning of the week...still has potential but not a trade I would have taken.

Generally beginning of the week its not the time to counter-trade since in most cases market has not revealed its hand...

Key data release on NZD is Weds,,,

Being aware of news events why I insist people to go over the calendar.It establishes awareness how market moves.Its given none knows the future but knowing what's coming one can have good idea when to trade the pairs for most effective manner.

@Davit which newssites do you read to create your prognoses? i've always wanted to avoid the news and i only trade when everything is quiet. but having trades for 1 day or more, you can't do without news. for longer trades news is a very big component, which scares me because 99% i don't know of. it's news which makes my winners into losses.

Keep analyzing your own way calendar events and overtime you will start seeing more how prices move.Its a process and nothing to be scared.

I use all kinds of sites Bloomberg, CNBC,FF,Reuters etc. Source not important what's important you being aware events are there.

Tonight we got AUD key data release
Weds NZD

One of this will lose against the other. AN at historical low won't surprise me good thrust north should NZD data confirm the red prediction.
I am already long AN so I will wait without slightest worry. I don't ever worry when I trade.

Oscillator divergence is the biggest myth.Has nothing to do with algos or MM placing their orders.

You are better off ignoring it.Oscillator basically calculates rate of price movement.That's all.

It can not exceed amount you funded. So if you put 500 and you made 10k and want to take out 1k it will only allow 500 on same debit card. Bank transfer rest. Which I did still pending.

If I asked unrelated question please don't block me, just ignore. regards, WT

They were told to shut down operations in Russia and I suspect there are Russian own...

<https://financefeeds.com/russian-for...de-trustforex/>

The Association of Forex dealers, the Russian Forex self-regulatory organization (SRO), has earlier today announced that it is terminating the membership of five companies: Alpari Forex, Forex Club, TeleTrade, Fix Trade and TrustForex.

The decision follows the revocation of the Forex dealer licenses of these five companies by the Central Bank of Russia. The regulator explained that the five brokers had repeatedly violated the Russian securities law. The violations range from providing false accounting statements to failures to follow the instructions issued by the Central Bank.

Under the Russian laws, licensed FX companies have to be members of an SRO. Unlicensed companies cannot be members of the FX SRO. Hence, the move by the Association is in line with the law.

"Alpari Forex failed to follow the instructions of the Central Bank of Russia. The company committed violations in the way it handled its internal accounting. The company also provided false accounting data and committed violations when handling risks."

Davit, what are your thoughts on the upcoming RBA Monetary Policy Statement which will hit the wires in about 4.5 hrs? In on several AUD trades from the pivots, I'm thinking about closing the trades as I won't be online when the news hits. However I might just put stops under the trade and let it roll if you have strong thoughts that the RBA effect will likely strengthen AUD. Thanks in advance.

This is lesser statement real statement was on Monday Rate Statement this one if anything may produce bullish response since Lowe already took care of the plunge. Now its correction time. In forex there is always push and pull action.Strong move following corrections.Remember last week USD got spanked this week she is killing left and right.

I am posting just to get feed back because the only way to learn is in real time. Its very easy to see once the candles have printed in hind-site.

In all honesty Pivots come closest to beat of the market in my opinion. MM placing large orders push prices then taking profits and going opposite direction.

number of idiots in this business is staggering. When someone says I promise you to turn 1k into 64k in 1year just run away. You are dealing with an idiot.

Unfortunately lots of new traders get hooked on garbage and blow their hard earned money with high leverage trading. That's what idiots promise.

I gave my son 500 to trade and told him. Your goal is not to blow it for 3 months never mind profits just survive for 3months!

EA has potential to drop 100pips south today. EU bulls TP and this being Friday likely that to occur.Plenty of time to drop today.

Should UC data print red we can see spike on crosses like NC and CJ both worth a look positive data on CAD will help boost all commodity pairs AUD NZD CAD against crosses.Even if you are not trading EC drop here is good for EA

Hi guys On Oanda. Issue is if you fund your account with debit card then you can only withdraw up to same amount. This is new I always used debit before without issues and now I have to do direct bank transfer going forward

Hi Davit,

Another way to get around this with Oanda is by transferring to their primary in-house account server vs. their offshore V2 account server, then be able to withdraw money in $300 to $500 or more with each transaction on the same day with the same debit card. This was my trick after multiple attempts to withdraw using trial and error transferring to different internal accounts - as above, my success was when I transferred into their (or my) internal default account.

However, transferring directly into your Bank MAY incur extra fees. But this may have changed since last year after they went all to V2 except their in-house default servers.

Good Luck...

Forex can be challenging in terms of taking profits.
Today's UC trade perfect example Price dropped to 3245 and could of taken TP then but I thought maybe this may reach WP lot lower instead price came back eating profits and took TP with 20% less profits.
There are times it does drop lot lower and had you bailed out you would be mad at yourself for getting out early.Last Week GC great example I went at it 3 badge of trades and felt pissed at myself for getting out leaving literary thousands not collected.
This is the advance level challenge where issue is not about losses anymore but taking profits

His strike zone is less then 20pips and he describes it herd mentality above his strike zone 🤪 so we go from herd to expert in less then 20 pips on Pair ADR around 150 🤪

Everyone has his method but I find it amusing how close we go from herd (loser amateur) to winner expert on 150ADR pair!!! My strike zone correctly takes account of pairs ADR difference of 1min noise trading and swing trading.

{quote} Nice! You also got it figured out like the others. I just learned this now. Very useful to check pivot history. So now that EU ended in S100. Where do you expect it to go then next week? Or you couldn't tell it yet. Will just need to observe how price moves especially around weekly.pivot point if it's going to break up or struggle then go back down?

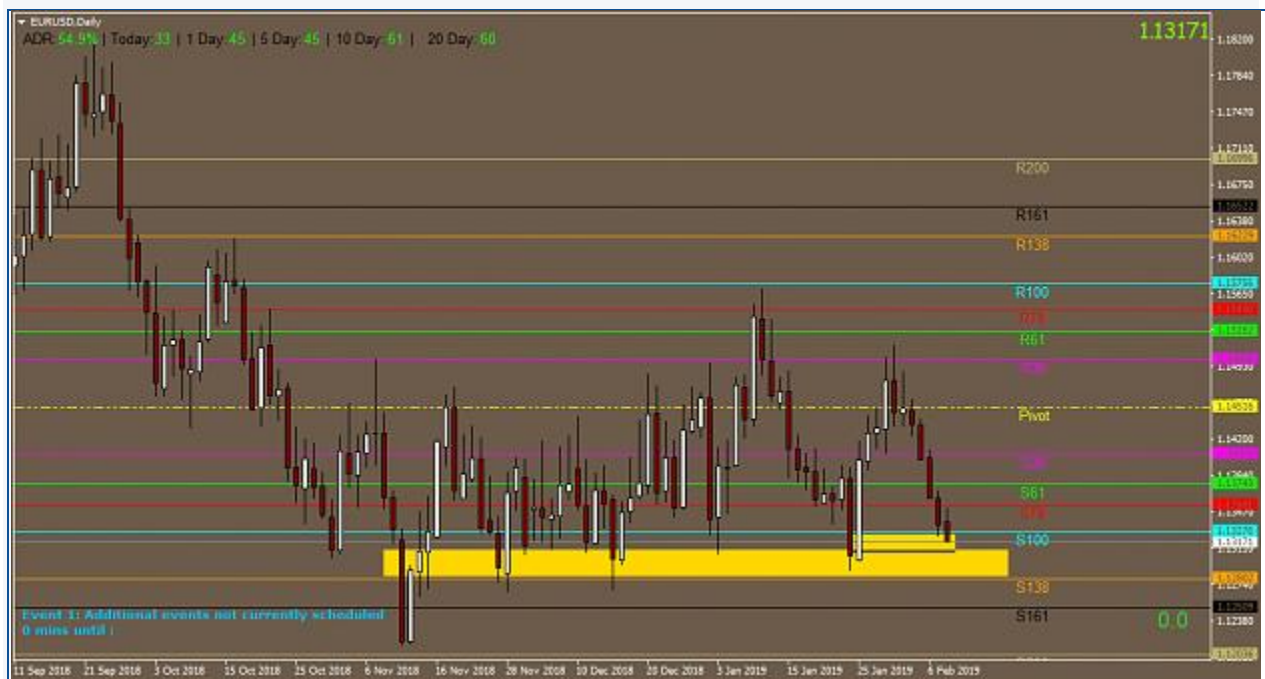

When you think EU its not just about EU its about AU NU UJ GU as well.What I mean EU is about how strong or weak USD is and may not be about European Union this week. Weds is CPI and if it prints read expect all majors to bounce against USD exception might be UJ which is most manipulated currency.There is cyclic factor about swings. EU has been dropping for all last week and where its at its very likely to bounce which fits with corrections cross the board. Impetus could be CPI but it could bounce even with minor green number.

Looking at daily EU is becoming attractive to buy.Will have to wait and confirm how market deals with it

Its obvious its been ranging and I love range

Have not posted my view for a while, so here it is. Calendar events Monday Japanese holiday - such days often mean a sell off. So I anticipate JPY weakness which would be great for my AJ longs. Watching closely. GBP Prelim GDP q/q I think should have the most impact here. It is considered red. To be honest, there are only two GBP involved pairs (GU, EG) I trade and they both sit in the middle of a daily range imo, so I would like EG to be a lot higher to go short or a lot lower, at 0.8630, to go long. But as I like to sell EG only, I'll wait it...

I like your calendar. You are using your own analyses and getting a grip feel on the battlefield. Keep doing it will improve your trading.
You have come a long way and I can sense a trader in you developing nicely!

Its been 3 years since I opened this thread. In most FF system threads usually indicators are added, ideas reshaped overtime but in my case I am happy to say if anything I even cleaned my charts from original indicators.

Leaner and meaner now 😊 Original concept still intact!

I would call it a successful method! 🍷

Here are my insights from the next week calendar. On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, we have red news for GBP. GDP m/m q/q (Monday), CPI y/y (Wednesday) are expected to print lower numbers indicating that the UK economy is decelerating. Manufacturing production m/m (Monday) and Retail Sales m/m (Friday) forecasts are higher than previous month. On Tuesday, BOE Gov Carney speech most likely will be dovish. The uncertainty around Brexit keeps negative sentiment for GBP. Outlook: GBP might continue to weaken and go into area of 1.28-1.27 (against...

Don't forget also last week USD dominated and this week may go into correction. Location of prices are important. This is when Technicals become important as well where prices are closed last week may lead how it unfolds.

Hi Davit, I am new to using Pivots.. I have a question.. last friday close.. AUD/USD was at S100.. As of today I am seeing AUD/USD at S38 .. can you explain this ?

We trade weekly pivots. Every week new pivots. Some think past pivots important me don't think so. Every week its clean sheet of paper. More variables you add more confusion. I attack every week fresh

Good Monday Morning... First I have to say that I have benefited a lot from this thread, after 1.5 years of unsuccessful trading first using combination of SR lines/MACD crossover/BB... and then trying out stuff like hidden divergence, etc. Nothing seems as accurate as this method. I have abandoned all other indicators other than those in Page 1. I'm hoping to learn more and break even this year (I'm about 5k in the red) and make consistent good trades. Thanks to everyone especially Davit for sharing! I have a question here, how do we determine the...

I try to get at least 80pips a trade most cases I succeed in this but obviously there are always exceptions. PA goes against you and clearly not working it would be foolish not take TP even 30pips then turn +$ into negative trade.

You will get out of your red $$ you need to be consistent. Its a mental conditioning.

If you have not watched Mark Douglas videos please do.Understanding EDGE and Probability is critical.

Are you serious?😏 Don't care what people do privately.I don't want to see CHF chart with live trades on it posted on my thread.I hope this clears up for you!

I help people make money and I dislike things that hurt their money.What I do is beneficial for community of traders on this thread.What they do outside this thread is none of my business here we elevate trading to high profitable level trading currency with high manipulation with -.75 swap is frankly idiotic.

Another question, on the indicator. On the bottom RHS, there is a green 'pip counter'. It doesn't seem to be working for me, always at 0.0. Is there any setting I should be making?

I suggest you install all relevant indicators into indicator folder then upload my template. Once everything works then you can change colors take out whatever you want. Its not uncommon people having difficulty with indicator without having it installed in the 1st place...

Hi Davit! Hi everyone! I took a long vacation from trading and FF, just to clear my head and from past I would rather stay away from market in November December times. Which apparently was wise decision. Reading back post I see a lot of new people and old timers still here. Great. People keep making money and newbies keep being kicked out. Just quick observation. I think USD will fall. This year. Hard. Those who live in US and already doing taxes might come across surprise bill. I know I did. 6000$ I have to pay on top of 25000 I already paid in...

Welcome back friend! I hope everything is well in your life. I agree there is rescission looming ahead not just US but globally. Its already showing its tail.

Funny part Apple surprised they did not sell enough 1k -$1400 phones in China😂😂😂😂 These morons still think people have thousands for their stupid overpriced phones! Just an example how accesses are unraveling

Apple actively goes after third party repair shops for replacing broken screens. These fk heads want to charge 500 for broken screen when 3rd party can do it for 100 or less. After Steve Jobs passing this company has become all about profits! Why I dislike Apple? Making billions and sheltering their money from taxes overseas while average middle class pays lions share! FK APPLE

Don't want to post everything I have going but almost all my trades in profit and have lot going....

Its obvious look at the pivots you'll see.I need my personal freedom to trade freely as I like hence posting all my live trades does not give anything to me other then attracting spoon feeders...One thing I hate most are individuals with incompetence with no work ethic but want others do the work for them.Does not work in my world....I must see genuine effort!

Many here put genuine effort and one recently deserves attention! Thank you!Its obvious Nextgendad has the fortitude and attitude to make in this business and it shows.Compare his post to last 2 guys I put on ignore.Its night and day difference.

Quoting Nextgendad

Davit I just wanted to say thank you for taking all the time you have putting all of this info together and out to us for free. I have been trading for over 4 years and strayed away from price action and pivots over the years and realized that was a huge mistake. For the past few weeks ive been going through this thread and it really has drawn me back to the fundamentally sound things I needed to get back too, I have been profitable for a long time but getting back to pivots and price action is like trading steroids to my trading now thank you sir. Just 898 more pages still to go through on this thread lol once I've finished and caught up you will hear from me alot. Until ive done the grunt work and have caught up on everything I don't want to comment alot because you are owed that respect, Thank you again.

While I wait for my trades to grow arms and legs, I picked this from FF somewhere long time back. Maybe this will help people to better understand the dynamics of forex pairs. {image}

Don't recommend that. That's basically based on moving averages and as you know Pivots are about location! Dashboards rarely if ever take that into an account.

Weak currency can become strong and strong weak etc. Its a fluid thing. People who create those rarely make profits trading them and there is a reason why. I just stated above. Retail traders fallacy.

Trust the system and watch Pivots/ PA and you will pick winners left and right. Simplify don't bury it with so much crap that you miss the pink elephant in the room.

NZD Data coming in a few hours. Rates is set to remain constant and that will be negative for NZD, esp considering the bad quarterly New Zealand employment report released last week. Whichever the direction the market choose to go, i will ride it. I will be looking more on AUDNZD and EN long. NZDUSD seems way oversold and i dont think it will make huge move if NZD prints red Made some nice pips on AJ long to the weekly pivot.

I am happy you are aware of what's coming. Overtime you will sense the best trades that fits particulate event. 👍

Hi Pivoters

This is what Pivot trading is. Taking advantage of events, being aware of them and hitting those pivots with PA.

Covers all bases.

Do this until it becomes a HABIT!

Success can become a HABIT! That's where you want to be taking money from market at will.

I am still learning so this is a dumb question, can we expect NU to keep climbing?

Why don't you look at the calendar and see if there are red news on USD this week and perhaps think about your question from that info as a background.

Seriously have you been reading here or sleep walking!

The 5 Fundamental Truths of Trading:Mark Douglas

1. Anything can happen.

2. You don't need to know what is going to happen next to make money.

3. There is a random distribution between wins and losses for any given set of variables that define an edge.

4. An edge is nothing more than an indication of a higher probability of one thing happening over another.

5. Every moment in the market is unique.

We got Retail sales Tomorrow basically market is pricing in the "good News"
Stops taken carnage throughout why I spread my orders. I don't fall for it. Keep your lots small and trade with mini orders.I can easily trade with full lots but that would be foolish and what MM and my broker wants.
Be agile, flexible so you can take the punches and come back unscarred.

EURCAD and CADJPY Looking interesting {image} {image}

I recommend not shorting CJ and not buying EC

Both pairs should be traded one direction until major R/S

EC should be shorted and CJ should be long.Better let market makers do the heavy lifting.This will make more sense once you understand value of positive swap.

So what I do if I like a pair to long like CJ NJ AJ I let the market drive it down then I buy at +swap with better positions (read larger lots)

When you look at weekly chart there is obviously lot more room to go up so its imperative your direction should be buy on dips.Trend is up if you want to go even bigger chart monthly {quote} Definitely some valid points here and can't argue it's a bad approach. However, what I do personally is to not have any preference up or down or left or right. For me looking in the past, trades skipped like this tend to be the biggest runners... I see super valid A+ short set-up on CJ, one of the slowest pair in the universe, so I am heavy short now. And as I am not planning to hold it for weeks I am not worried about negative swap either.

You should do what works for you everyone different 🤝👍

Trading is sometimes like boxing being able to have stamina (margin) to take the punches and basically tire your opponent then knock him out.

Why I keep saying trade smaller then your normal.

UJ perfect example some started shorting at 1040 and took the loss maybe at 1080-11. It dropped to 110.50. Had you spaced your entries you would of made profit instead of a loss.

{quote} I've been trading for over 10 years. I'm aware of Davit's favorite pairs. I'm aware some people don't like to trade high ADR pairs and that is fine but I haven't come across Davit forbidding trading them. I'm working thru the thread but there are over 1,400 pages; I'm on page 26. I don't know that I have the time to read thru every single page, I'll do my best. I certainly don't need to post any trades. I don't really want to post the pairs that Davit already posted; since really not needed for me to echo his calls. I don't want to do any...

Hi friend John here dutifully which I am very thankful compiled my key posts so its easier to read them.

Its on clipboard.You can click on pages to find them

I don't forbid high ADR pairs its a preference for me to avoid them specially GN GJ which if not sufficiently experienced in trading can wipe out one's account.

I achieve same results on slower pairs by adding more trades

What can art, music in this case teach about trading. A whole lot. Great Guitar Clinic by Chris Broderick listen specially from 12min mark when he breaks down components of practice.

How does it relate to trading?

Focusing too many things might get overwhelming.

Try focusing on

1st week Price Action

2nd week Calendar events

3rd Combine both

4th Pivots

5th Psychology training like Mark Douglas videos.

Then repeat. Do it enough that it becomes automatic. Like muscle memory which is so critical for musician

Anyway I always find Trading so related to Arts because to me Trading is an ART

Or if you see a bit of headwind, pull back in EUR strength would you close and reopen. I think what I'd like to do is remain open wait for pull back and build more positions as it goes south. Unfortunately, this is always been a challenge for me, I often find the price likes to swing higher than I thought, and before the pull back is completed I close...

buying what? Hope not EU👀👀👀 That horse is getting branded lower and lower

EC hits 1.50 selling it again most likely

I am done buying Euro. Basically my bias is sell through crosses like EC

EA

Numbers all red all month on Euro block and Brexit drama is getting deeper

My calendar Analyses next week

I always start with overall picture with USD then proceed.

Couple of key data fell short of expectation by wide margin specially retail sales 9yr low and U.S. industrial production 8 month low. This paints negatively on economy which fits with USD corrections coming in following weeks. (Perhaps should of kept my UC shorts...)

Key currency next week or shall I say focus will be AUD. Judging from severity of sold off AUD I anticipate a bounce specially on AN and AU AC could be a factor as well.

Mon

AUD Monetary Policy Meeting Minutes-I anticipate more positive tone after Lowe basically talked down the AUD on previous press questions/answers
One does not kick the dead horse twice!

Tues

GBP Average Earnings Index 3m/y projection 3.5 from 3.4 if true could fuel G pairs even more after Trump support of UK.

AUD-Wage Price Index q/q if prints same or better its great news for our poor struggling AUD (I get no respect Rodney Dangerfield 😂)

Weds

Feds minutes-Any cautionary tone will be seen as a weakness by the market and in light of recent poor numbers I anticipate major sell off USD day.

AUD-Employment Change

Unemployment Rate good news here would be great however even average numbers would help AUD

Thurs

EUR German Flash Services PMI Red here would stifle Euro gains. My sentiment is very bearish on Euro and love to see both EC and EA bounce up so I can sell them again.

USD Core Durable Goods Orders m/m In my view its not a great mover. Should the Feds minutes suggest negative economy this in my opinion would not matter.

CAD BOC Gov Poloz Speaks Positive tone would help the CAD

RBA Gov Lowe Speaks He talked down the AUD last time so this is a wild goose event

Fri

CAD Core Retail Sales m/m minor red number projection and if prints green it would be fantastic for CAD

EUR Good old Dovish Draghi speaking.Expect nothing....if anything Euro sell off

That's it my focus will be AUD CAD and Euro Crosses next week.Notice I painted same currency news same colors this way its obvious what currency dominates the calendar. Simple!

Lets make money guys! 💰💰💰 Execute! Execute what matters!

I changed my decision of closing UC and re entered more lots at 3250
I am looking 131 next week.I anticipate Feds basically weakening the USD without lowering the rate.

UJ is expensive to hold why I closed it but added more positions on UC at least with UC you are not getting killed by Swap fees like UJ
GU could be a good buy but not one of my favorite pairs.Endless drama on Brexit keeps me away...

Just curious. Can I just buy it without been employer and how much money will I spend on it? Can't understand laws, rules & pricing in this field in USA.

If not substituted by Employee purchasing health insurance on your own is expensive 1200 average to 2500 a month. This is significant when you have mortgage car payments on top.

Thank you very much! A very useful indicator.

I tried to load it with default date settings, but it crashed detecting a divide by zero error in a method calculating point value for a particular symbol (DAX future), so I fixed it.

If anyone encountered the same problem, this is the indicator with bugfix.

Guy and Girls, Why do you think we have a magnified market price? Just because BLING looks nice? Why are YOU using the indicators on this thread? Because Davit said so or Because I know how to use them, ask your self? 70% of traders here is not really understanding PIVOT TRADING. 70% of traders is posting their trades still running in profit, when a few posts back they were given a heads up by Davit. Davit would normally say you got a 70% chance of getting it right, I want to turn it around and say you got a 30% chance of getting this right. DID...

Hi Egbert

Please take this right way just constructive criticism. You are a valued contributor and allow me to add please don't discuss trading matters on my behalf.

If there are corrections I will address it. What others do is not your concern. It creates unhealthy dynamic because you assume too much what others do and what this system is about.

There is nothing special about larger price I just like to glance and see it and since I am a visual person it works for me however it has zero effect on trading the system.

{quote} Thanks Davit, Please accept my apology, was just trying to hear what the other people was thinking and how they see the system, hence taking your trades as an example. Was not attacking anybody. I still respect you as the thread starter and its never for me to change anything on your thread. Its just a shame only the OP gave me a response, hence I'm still standing by my way. Does everyone know what they are trading on this thread, with respect Davit.

Thanks for taking it right way. As the saying goes creme raises to top. I learned to accept that each one's success is proportional how much they want to succeed.

There are guys trading far more years then I and still losing. Everyone is responsible for themselves. When I see no effort, spoon feeders, lazy individuals, even the ones calling me "buddy" I kick them out. People who put effort shows through the results and others I care less. I am here just to provide the tools but execution must come from them.

Would it be wrong to assume if price has passed the ADR high and price is above 68 level on TDI and above the pivot that we can sell?

Think of ADR like traffic light

When it goes in red you know it has over traveled then normal. You should look up 1st why so maybe major news release like interest rate or other fundamental factors if nothing major then you look at Pivots and Price Action. TDI above 68 is irrelevant.

This is how i trade, I wait for the 4 hour close. Davit said that the 4hr is too late you will miss pips and i totally agree but i also think it prevents me being in DD. When the 4hr closes in a good pivot zone then next stage is I look at 5 day ADR. For instance the A/U is 48 so i say 50 pips. i make my mark and open positions. When price is going in my favour i add positions all away to my target but the last 1/4 i stop just incase price turns early and i have to close early. If price doesn't go in my favour then i wait until the next pivot and...

My philosophy always been do what works for you.Within same system I am sure there are lot of variations based on individuals experience temperament..

To me 4hr is overkill but if that's what you feel comfortable then that's what you do. 9months later when your confidence increases you might drop down to 1hr...

I think Davit would approve of this video course by Mark Douglas. Davit please let me know if you think these links are relevant otherwise delete this post. Almost an 8 hr course here. I don't know the person who hosts the videos; but these links are GOLD in my opinion. The concepts in this course are essential basics unknown by most traders, even many "professionals" are clueless as to how the market works. 4 parts. Part watched them all many times over. They keep getting deleted so I suggest you download them and keep them on separate drive. I have Yes agree MD provides very keen observations and very influential on my trading. Love when he talks about probabilities and Edge and how prices move.

1 <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QgaTITfQnZI> Part

Hi guys

I said this on 1st page PA is queen (chess terminology) and worth reading this site on PA

<https://www.theforexguy.com/price-action-strategy/>

One of the best presentation I have seen on Price Action. I hear a lot about people dropping PA in their words but I suspect lot of guys are not too familiar with all nuances. Goldmine of ideas presented here. Simple visual charts clearly marked. Scroll down and read over the weekend. Think of SUN project.

cheers

Notice lot what I have been doing is exactly presented here selling rallies buying dips, range trading, trend trading, not buying highs or selling lows.

Instead of being hang up on indicators (MA's, Oscillators) its lot more rewarding getting really good at this reading PA correctly.

Trading with Oscillators is like running with one hand holding a crutch surely you can run faster and with less effort without it.

In every learning environment being accountable to a mentor is very important for progress. Apologies for late posting Davit. Here is my take on this week fundamentals;

Attached Image (click to enlarge)

CURRENCY	STRONG	WEAK CURRENCY	CHANGING BIAS BY MARKET FORCES	Planned Trade
NZD	Strong		NZD seem to be overbought (No strong Fundamental this week,however I expect some corrections with other pairs like GBP,AUD	NZDJPY;NZDUSD;GBPNZD;EURNZD
AUD		Weak	The Perception of Market on Dovish Move of Governor might shift position if the details of Minutes comes out Monday;The wage Price on Tuesday and Unemployment Rate on Wednesday is factor for AUD recovery from Last week Dovish perception. Gov Lowe's speech on thursday is also to be considered by market	USDAUD;GBPAUD;EURAUD
CAD	Strong		The Retails sales Index and Gov Poloz speech are strong factors on how strong it will remain in the coming days.
USD	Strong		Weak Retails sales last week could have some effects on USD pairs this week;FOMC meetings can be indicative of the hawkish/dovish position of the committee members in coming weeks. But I see the bullish trend on USD wayning off.	USDJPY;EURUSD;USDCAD;USDAUD
JPY			Investors seem to have stopped buys on Yen assets as a safe haven for now;watch out for PMI index on Thursday	NZDJPY;USDJPY;EURJPY
EUR		Weak	The dats from German and the Protest in France are factors on EUR. I don't expect much from Draghi's speech on Friday. However if data PMI data in France and Germany are news to watch out for on Thursday.	EURUSD;EURAUD;EURNZD;EURGBP;EURCAD
Note : I will trade cautiously (minimum Risk) on Pound Pairs because of BREXIT issue.

I follow the calendar on <https://www.forexfactory.com/#closed>, and up to now it never occurred to me to summarize it.

looking at events is not enough. Go over it and understand it and analyze it. Make sure you are aware how that may effect price.

This is professional thread and as such its expected you be in the know about all red news/events for the week. What this thread is different then others in FF is level of seriousness in understanding how Technical Pivots/PA work together with News/Events ! They are interconnected!

Trading awareness! What's coming up is a must if you want to succeed as a professional trader.

In essence we are trading information. Being ignorant about events is NOT an EDGE!!!

I usually scan the forums since I am always curious. Yesterday a poster (does not matter where at FF) had AU charts with arrows MA's and the whole cake but ZERO awareness we got serious events on Aussie dollar all week. Now you see how pathetic that is. Charts are just that. You got to see how the charts relate to reality!

Last week i got complicated ... unusual for me ,but since i got messed up with bad pairs then i had to work my ass hard with MM to get that 1000 pips. finally all was good. then this week started thinking to NOT complicate things again ... results and number of pairs tells a story, thats why is always better to keep up with the best pairs recommended by Davit while trading pivots. I leave this here not for the pips i made which many weeks are easy task but as an example for newbies to see clear results when you fuck up things and get in pairs NOT...

Great! 👍 I wished you posted with pairs how much on which pair. Total numbers does not convey your point clearly want to show you mistake I made.

Bought AU then realized with all data this week promptly closed and it was right decision because I would of had worthless DD to deal with.

Why the trade? Bored maybe? Yes but caught myself flat and corrected. Showing this because I am human sometimes do make mistakes but I have enough experience to see it clearly.

I am not guru and not an expert but do nail profitable trades consistently. I am in constant mode to improve what I do. What and how I traded last year I can noticeably tell I am doing it better now. Hitting the losers early on. Goal is to minimize DD as low as possible even though I have over 60k free margin but that's irrelevant what's relevant is keeping your troops healthy for battle without the DD dragging things down

Once again Pairs I often trade and recommend

All majors minus (USD/CHF) if you don't know what is major you should not be here
Favorite Crosses often traded

CJ AJ NJ NC AC
AN EC EG EA

Sometimes deviate on other pairs when I see a great set up like GC previous week but for most part stick to pairs I am comfortable trading.

Commodity pairs and their relevant crosses are my favorites. Why? Easier to trade and often rangy and range is good. Forget what you heard from trading books range is where money is.

Pairs don't recommend

GN GJ GA all variations of CHF should be avoided.

Hyper pairs like I mentioned are in my experience don't fall into position building well and if got it wrong can be account draining. Ironically where lots of noobs get killed. I seriously think if you don't have solid experience and know what you are doing you should not even have GJ GN GA on your charts.

In addition to Daily ranges, it also gives you session ranges (useful for intraday trades within trading sessions) and shows you how much room you have above and below the market price (Room Up and Room Dn) at any point in time.

I made a mistake ADR was correct. Price dropped below daily line about 20pips then went up crossing daily line and higher. 52pips on EC was correct. It was my mistake. No need to change anything

Admin, I ask for your permission to post this. I made a placed for fund withdrawal from FXPRO the broker I use. The declined the withdrawal on the premise that the card I used in funding the account is old that I should use bank wire. The same card is still valid till December, 2019. I have asked them to explain what they mean by the card is "old" and they refused to explain. Why I should use bank wire is what I didn't understand. I need to be properly guided. Thanks

I think if I am not mistaken they changed the rules (government regulation) They no longer accept Debt card withdrawals or may allow only exact funds deposited to be withdrawn and very likely you already took all the funds out initial card deposit and now remaining must be bank wire.

I had similar situation with Oanda.

profits on laser focus pairs.

One of the reasons people lose in Forex because they are severely under-capitalized hence this forces new trader to risk more to gain equity but has opposite effect. It hindrance patience ,Stop Loss and position size.

Let me give you an example if your account is 500 you will be bored making 1.50-3-4 dollars and you will be tempted to go larger and max out on margin and one bad trade could set you back 20% loss and now you are digging out of a hole and may not get out until account is busted.

Sounds familiar? I bet it is.

Proper thing to do is save your money and minimum open 2k account start from there. At 2k account you should not go beyond 5 dollars total lot. 30c positions 40c to start. with 1:50 ratio It will give you reasonable amount gains that trading becomes meaningful and effect you positively.

Some of you might be wondering why I closed EC
Fine lets go over why.
From left candle to right

WP major R/S

1st candle.Engulfing bear candle

2nd candle.Doji

When a market's open and close are almost at the same price point, the candlestick resembles a cross or plus sign – traders should look out for a short to non-existent body, with wicks of varying length.

This doji's pattern conveys a struggle between buyers and sellers that results in no net gain for either side. Alone a doji is neutral signal, but it can be found in reversal patterns such as the bullish morning star and bearish evening star.

3rd candle larger bull candle then previous doji.

4th another doji

The reason I waited because after 1st engulfing bear candle I was waiting for a continuation of that move which did not come.

When you put all together Bear momentum is not looking great hence taking my profits out of the market.

What I anticipate may happen back to 50 test and may provide reload.

Davit thanks a lot for explanation. Now i feel like my interpretation of the candles needs adjustment. I closed 3/4 of everything left few to run in NO Loss. Reason for me was closing at WP, I saw first rejection from WP, that was my first signal, Second test and another rejection. Thats where i closed 3/4 of the orders. But i didnt even think to see it that deeper like you did.

another thing to recognize what Mark Douglas says "anything can happen"

Which means you can do all correct actions and price can drop next second anyway and that's fine because to me price is a liquid thing. Japanese candles are indicators freezing time price into a shape but price obviously is continuously flowing between buyers and sellers (this should always be back of your mind). Pivots to me magically work gauging MM moves and times to a T overall my Edge I think is dynamic which makes my trading fearless basically stress free.

Something I want to get out of my chest. Its important

You'll read lots of science fiction conspiracy theories by "experts" here at FF like Forex is moved by single entity etc. Become totally cryptic to read etc.

This is categorically false. Forex is tremendously huge to be controlled by single entity. Amount of volume being exchanged is in trillions not easy to hide this volume for so long if it was single entity.. Fact is even big banks market makers lose money in Forex and this fact alone illustrates that players are multi and competition is fierce!

How typically big Banks Market makers fill their orders

Every trade that is executed in the forex markets has to have a buyer and seller and when this takes place then we have a trade. This normally happens in a fraction of a second electronically but in essence, each time you enter a buy trade you are being matched with someone who is happy to enter a sell position and take the opposite side of your trade. If this doesn't happen then there wouldn't be a trade. Why is this so important? Because it highlights the problems that large banks have which small traders don't. Any retail trader is able to place whatever position size they wish into the market without ever fearing slippage or bad fill. Granted slippage may take place during high impact news items such as central bank announcements but on the whole, most of the executed trades are done instantaneously.

Now if you're a retail trader trading 1 standard Lot then you won't have any problems with being filled at the price you want. Imagine you're trading 100 Lots or 500 Lots or 1000 lots, these are larger positions to put into the market at any one time and it's much more difficult to find someone to take the other side of the trade at the exact price and the exact time that you want and therefore might not be filled at a great price. Well, what could you do in such a situation? You have one of three options:

Option 1:

You could either bite the bullet and get executed at whatever price you are able to get, the only problem here is that you won't be getting the best price possible for your trade which eats into your profits.

Option 2:

You could wait for the price to get to the price level you want so that you get the best execution possible and buy or sell at a much more favorable price – this is great but what if the price doesn't get to the level you want for you to execute your trade? You will either be forced to walk away without making a trade or be forced to take whatever price you can get if doing the trade is absolutely essential

Option 3:

You force the price to get to the level at which you want to transact by cleverly manipulating other smaller traders to push the market in the direction you want it to go. Once you get the price to the level you want then you can carry out your transaction. How can you do this? By taking massive positions and exercising your muscle. This is similar to when large companies and conglomerates bully smaller businesses out of the market through aggressive competition.

Targeting price towards stops /limit orders triggers sudden liquidity which fills MM orders and why just about every swing ends with a spike!

Now you understand why sudden drop or spike of price is no guarantee that price will travel same direction of spike. Often it's the opposite specially towards swing tops bottoms.

I hope this explains it

Why is this knowledge critical. Because suppose you are seating on DD EU you bought at 1310 and price sudden drops to 1280 typically retail traders place 20pips below round numbers/major R/S trend lines, Double tops bottoms etc. (why Brokers always push firm SL placed)

Price drives to 1270 then 65 assuring all stops cleared then swings back up 13 and higher. Meanwhile you have the brown bag in your hand with angry nerves.

Myself I would of added more longs at 65 and either get out BE at say 1280 or hold for more which typically what I do.

Now you understand why knowing how prices get filled helps about managing losses.

That AUD inflation news confirms my thoughts. Looking very likely that AUD will blink first and lower interest rates first before NZD. Look for more weak AUD action. I would be shocked if any data for AUD will be good this week, Lowe speaks Thursday I now expect him to likely send the AUD lower, will see how the PA is before. If the AUD crushed before Thursday then maybe Lowe will try to help it recover. All just ideas. Keeping an eye on what the Central Bankers and the Data says is really such a game changer. Knowing when likely Good news will...

Its minor market already knows this is the same story not just in Australia but US EU Japan NZ Canada slight red is not bad actually i just wanted to stop by and thank you for your super valuable teachings. The first time i saw your thread was around 8 months ago when i started learning to trade. Because you mentioned that this is advanced trading, i quickly left and looked for other trading methods. Like a lot of newbies, i got attracted to EAs and "this line crosses that line" systems. I tried out alot of systems that work around the TDI, but most of them failed after a series of trades. In your posts (i am still catching up and i am trying to stay up to date) you are clearly showing why these systems fail (ignoring position/location, news, MM, ...) and in hindsight i also realized that this couldnt be any closer to the truth. I also read/watched your recommended ebooks/videos at the beginning, but back then i totall didnt understand what Mark Douglas and co. were talking about. Now i am starting to understand more and more what they were saying ...

Hello Davit,

I am not experienced enough yet to post any trades here and i dont want to clutter your thread with silly questions and trading errors. But i think i am getting there ...

So thank you once again. These are my results with your approach for this month and it's looking quite good. I sincerely hope and believe that one day i will be able to discuss trades with you guys

AJ also looking weak (shortable). Banging against R61 repeatedly on H1. When you couple this with Nasdaq doing the same on R38 ... it seems to me the market is headed lower. Of course anything can happen, but I like the odds.

you are making great progress! Have some beer 🍺🍺🍺

I can sense your focus! Its great 👍 just take that wiggly white MA out don't think it helps in anything. Remember every variable takes away what in essence here is Pivots ,events, PA

You don't make it better by adding junk you take away.

I know old habits hard to break but you got to. I went my own stage of RSI Bollinger bands TDI but shed them all. Not carrying extra baggage...I am light on feet and can run anywhere quick. That's advantage. My trades last 48hrs proves it.

Did not get the move during FOMC but patiently waited for AUD news and got what had been waiting for. Years of studying, following this thread and discipline. Although Pivots showed one thing, Structurally it kept showing me AUD longs this week. I have to become well rounded if I am going to catch pips this way.

My focus for this week will be mainly on AUD and it's crosses. I see this week as the week AUD will follow NZD and head north and add data to that long short. I will not be awake during London so I don't follow their news.

Monday Feb 18
6:30pm AUD Monetary Policy Meeting Minutes - since it will be on US Holiday might have more effect than what it should. I might just stay away in order to see reaction this could very well keep AU uptrend, and possibly wait for later in the week to sell on zone.

Tuesday Feb 19
6:30pm AUD Wage Price Index q/q - unchanged

Wednesday Feb 20
1:00pm USD FOMC Meeting Minutes - USD has been relentless but market goes up and DOWN sooner or later bearish USD has to stick...
6:30pm AUD Employment Change - This might surprise to upside I will be going long or buying dips, especially if price has remained above WP till now. Last week pair traded under WP.

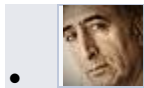

Thursday Feb 21
7:30am USD Core Durable Goods Orders m/m - Forecast is positive might start selling AUDUSD if in key zone.
USD Durable Goods Orders m/m
USD Philly Fed Manufacturing Index
4:30pm AUD RBA Gov Lowe Speaks - Last week Lowe could have been called Low...I think too much attention placed on this weeks speech will wait this one out and trade it's reaction if setup allows it.

Friday Feb 22
7:30am CAD Core Retail Sales m/m - Thursday's Wholesale Sales m/m should give me a better idea of direction
CAD Retail Sales m/m

Idea is to hit it again if it drops below 450 and below worth going long again. AC that is. I usually reload same trade until it reaches swing top or major Pivot
I got out at 480 and if I go long again at 450 that's 30pips collected and fresh longs made at lower price. You guys follow me right?

Added AC longs at 6365-70 DD at 6425 no issues. I trade small relative to my account size to deal with unexpected like market manipulation we experienced and other reasons

This was not Red News Event this was unexpected market manipulation which can happen on any pair any time.

Fact is have DD on AC but have bigger profits on NC 😊🍺

Train is going forward full speed 🚂🚂🚂🚂

Market can prove me wrong anytime! Meaning every trade I make has inherent risk. Risking money to make money is trading and that's given.

System's Edge is developed to trade not on single batch of trades but hundreds and hundreds hence success is defined over series of trades.

This must be ingrained in your trading psychology!

This fact must be understood and why I dislike people starting to make proclamations what they do and don't and their opinions.
Stay on course or leave please.

It's NewsCal MT4, imo this is much better. Try this instead.

gbpusd; on daily perspective GBP is calm, consolidating its recent gains. I see 2 consecutive doji candle in formation last 5 hours to end of the day. I understand that it is uncertain to go through 1.305. for that reason I go south;

how is this in context of pivots

Since this is Pivot trading its seems obvious your post should of started price at 100R then etc. This is critical to grasp. Without this context nothing makes sense to me.

"Pairs don't recommend

GN GJ GA all variations of CHF should be avoided.

Hyper pairs like I mentioned are in my experience don't fall into position building well and if got it wrong can be account draining. Ironically where lots of noobs get killed. I seriously think if you don't have solid experience and know what you are doing you should not even have GJ GN GA on your charts. "

Should be the standard for serious traders. Anything over that trader has intentions of gambling. Just my opinion. Besides any true (if there is such a thing) broker does not offer more than 1/50. All those 1/500 and 1/1000 are shady at best.

A fair caution to the majority of pivoteers who are trading with IC Markets. I believed they're not pure ECN as advertised and are a Market Maker in disguise. Based on their advertisement, the spreads ought to be 1 pip for GU, see what occurred on my ECN account? This is crazy. I know I should not be sharing such incident here, however, is this even normal for an ECN account?

{image} {image}

close to 5pm closing time all brokers increase spread. That's normal

General pattern here

Guys from Germany Sweden UK US Canada Mexico Singapore India and many other countries generally follow rules and make every effort to learn and opposite from Nigeria. Just about every Nigerian poster here ignored rules, arrogant know it all and disregard everything asked here..Why? reasons could be many.

I know you gonna read I am racist and all that shit but facts are facts on this thread I removed more Nigerians out for violations then anyone else.

UJ has been ranging all month and to demonstrate how one can trade even tight range.

Here is my stat on UJ this month.

Just to show just because something does not move a lot does not mean its not trade worthy. Already mentioned here many times I love rangy pairs

Notice top performers are commodity pairs 🤪💰 When I post something I back it up. Have mentioned here several times I love trading commodity pairs and their relative crosses. Don't have single GU trade....Not an accident.

There is no point of selling AC when price already has reached S100 and going up since then. I prefer you stay on principles this system is based upon. You might get lucky here and there but over larger sample size this is losing.

If you were invited at the time, I surely made a mistake and I humbly apologize for having mistaken you for a valued contributor to this thread.

I agree it was messy times. You did what naturally one thought to do salvage a thread somewhere else. I don't hold that negative against you. 🙌

Fact is I don't need this thread to trade. I can easily trade alone and part of me does want to do that....but part of me likes the interaction since trading can be very boring...and bonus lot of guys here made pretty good money trading this among other things.

{quote} Hi RieseP, how can you feel inadequate with such results ? 10% a week is stratospheric performance. 😊 Even 10% a month it is. If you can do it consistently in years, you'll have a lot of money. 😊 Best regards, Bubincka

I gave my son 500 to open an account to trade.He is up 647 over 20% this month gain but does not know anything....Yes have helped him but coming from dad he is not so open....

Anyway point of my post small account results are no indication same performance can be achieved with 10k 50k or 100k account.Why? Trading psychology.It effects more bigger account gets.

This is why its more important to be consistent gains come naturally.

You may go big on 1k account and get lucky and make 30% gain one 1 trade. Are you seriously going to put 40k on the line on 100k account on 1 trade? If you do you would be the biggest idiot. This is why FF trades are full of amazing results but seriously those amazing results are small accounts basically gambling $$ and no indication you will see same guy hitting same numbers 12 months from now. Usually its up 1 month then steep decline and then bust and cycles continues and brokers entice more suckers

This is not directly referring our friend here but just trying to shed light on this matter.

Retail sells are down in US as well. Its general pattern of slowing economies. CAD may get the broom today we'll see.

{quote} Yes I need 9450 to clear early entries before that bank manipulation drop. That was unexpected. Shows that you can recover. I can close all and be in profit now but do think I have real shot maybe next week 9450+ Don't mind holding. Fees if any will be minimum on this {image} to avoid the panda FIFO rule, you may consider to set the TP for all orders with a price below 0.94075 to +10 pips (around 0.9417).

then those positive orders will be closed without problem with the FIFO rule.

Today gain 3X over my daily goal of profits 💰🍀😊
Week $8251 after fees

That's $1651 a day even though Monday was a holiday...Done for the week.This was lot of fun! 💰👍😊

I would say I outperformed my daily profit goal. 👍 Great love motivating myself.
See you guys next week.

Two Hidden Virtues of Successful Traders

One of the most interesting aspects of working as a trading coach is the ability to see, first hand, what contributes to the success of traders. So often the factors that lead to success are not those emphasized in mainstream articles and books. Here are two unappreciated virtues I see among successful portfolio managers and traders:

1) The ability to tolerate uncertainty - Suppose you take any particular configuration of price in a market; say, trading $x\%$ above or below a Y period moving average. Then look at what that market does on average over the next Y period. The odds are great that for any value of x and Y , the market's directional tendency will be swamped by the variability of price within that next Y period. What that means is that, on average, the signal to noise ratio for a directional trader is low. Whatever directional tendency is present is generally not statistically significant and not readily tradeable. Given such a situation, the modal opinion of any trader should be "I don't know". Uncertainty is itself a view and, in fact, should be one's base case. When a trader cannot tolerate uncertainty and needs to manufacture conviction, the result inevitably is overtrading the objective opportunity set. It is impossible to properly manage risk if you are intolerant of uncertainty.

2) The productivity of time spent away from trading - I consistently find that successful traders spend more time identifying good trading opportunities than actually putting on and managing trades. Csikszentmihalyi conducted a fascinating study with artists in which they were shown 27 objects and asked to arrange a small group of them into a composition and generate a sketch. They had one hour for the task. The artists fell into two categories. One group quickly identified the objects for the composition and spent the better part of the hour refining their sketches. The second group spent most the hour figuring out what to draw. They selected objects, started sketches, changed the objects, sketched some more, rearranged objects, etc. By the time they found the composition they liked, they spent only a few minutes on the final sketch. The drawings of the second group were rated as significantly more creative by a group of art critics than those of the first group and, after a five year period, the second group demonstrated significantly greater success as artists. The less successful artists spent most their time sketching. The successful artists spent most their time finding compositions worthy of sketching. It's a great analogy for trading.

Good things happen when these two strengths come together. The ability to accept uncertainty frees the mind to maximize time away from trading and creatively generate sound trade ideas. For the successful trader, uncertainty provides the opportunity to get away from screens and look at markets through new lenses. Overtrading exists when the need to trade exceeds the need to understand.

Calendar for the next week.

Monday

Attached Image (click to enlarge)

Date	Time	Currency	Impact	Event	Actual	Forecast	Previous
Monday	12:00	GBP		BOE Gov Carney Speaks
Monday	18:00	USD		FOMC Member Clarida Speaks

Not much going on on Monday. Carney speaking due to press conference in London. I do anticipate more dovish stance but as I'm still not trading GBP I really don't care atm what he has to say. But I am waiting what happens to Brexit. MP's say that Brexit must be postponed when EU will not agree more appropriate agreement. So if they don't want to postpone Brexit, the agreement must be concluded this week. Much unlikely EU agrees to reopen negotiations. But expecting unexpected, very interesting indeed.

Tuesday

Attached Image (click to enlarge)

Date	Time	Currency	Impact	Event	Actual	Forecast	Previous
Tuesday	12:00	GBP		Inflation Report Hearings
Tuesday	17:00	USD		CB Consumer Confidence		124.3	120.2
Tuesday	17:00	USD		Fed Chair Powell Testifies
Tuesday	23:45	NZD		Trade Balance		-300M	264M

GBP inflation report hearings. As already mentioned I will not turn much attention to GBP as I don't want to take quick trades (scalps), not my style.

USD CBS Consumer Confidence anticipated green. Well, the whole week is full of USD, lots of news and Powell, so I'm not that sure what to expect from USD and because of that I won't trade USD much and will concentrate more to crosses.

Worth to mention that NZD Trade balance considered red. Later on Thursday ANZ Business Confidence. I anticipate that it will be red also. NZD got some beating this week but recovered quickly. So here could be some opportunity to short NZD again. Definitely watching. I like where AN is atm, so there could be possibility for another long.

Wednesday

Attached Image (click to enlarge)

Date	Time	Currency	Impact	Event	Actual	Forecast	Previous

Wednesday	12:00	EUR		German Buba President Weidmann Speaks
Wednesday	15:30	CAD		CPI m/m		0.2%	-0.1%
Wednesday	15:30	CAD		Common CPI y/y		1.9%	1.9%
Wednesday	15:30	CAD		Median CPI y/y		1.8%	1.8%
Wednesday	15:30	CAD		Trimmed CPI y/y		1.9%	1.9%
Wednesday	17:00	USD		Fed Chair Powell Testifies

Lot's of CAD news here. CPI green. Could be mixed bag, so watching where it takes us. EC near support. As much I don't like to long this pair, I have to admit that there could be nice opportunity for long. If you look at oil you see that it may face some resistance, so CAD short is an option.

Yeah, Powell again. Well, what ever, speaking at some dinner event but could move the market anyways. What I really want to bring out is AUD, Construction work Done q/q considered green. Could really happen. Also Private Capital Expenditure q/q anticipated green on Thursday, so I'm keeping my EA short (which has become more like an investment not a trade 😊). I have milked it couple of times this month, hope to continue. Also AC long could be an option here. Really like where price is.

Thursday	15:30	CAD		RMPI m/m		4.1%	3.8%
Thursday	15:30	USD		Advance GDP q/q		2.6%	3.4%
Thursday	15:30	USD		Advance GDP Price Index q/q		1.7%	1.8%
Thursday	16:45	USD		Chicago PMI		58.1	56.7

Already mentioned ANZ Business Confidence, I anticipate red.

Also mentioned AUD Private Capital Expenditure, holding on to AUD longs (EA short) and looking to long AC.

Mixed bag for CAD, watching if it helps to long (or hold long) AC or not.

USD Advance GDP anticipated red, not trading USD this week, too messy.

End of month.

Powell eating and having a speech at the same time again. Bon appétit. Friday could be interesting, maybe I can profit from MM profit taking. Lots of USD news. May get some opportunity to trade USD at the end of the week, but only "maybe".

CAD GDP considered green. Taking action depending on if I'm in any CAD trade or not.

First time ever I do my calendar and I've found it way more difficult then I tought... Took me about 2 hours and I'm not that confident about it but with practice it will be come easier.

Sorry for my choppy english, feel free to comment, any help here is appreciated

Last week of february, massive profit taking by MM is expected

Sunday

4:45pm NZD Retail Sales q/q
0.5% 0.0%
NZD
Core Retail Sales q/q

0.8% 0.4%

Retail sales on a downtrend since May 2015, I expect neutral and/or red numbers here which should push NZD down

Monday

5:00am GBP
BOE Gov Carney Speaks

GBP moved up in the beginning of last week then ranged and started falling Friday, dovish speak here will move this down further and even if hawkish speech I see this as a non-event, market will prefer to wait for inflation report to take decision

Tuesday

5:00am GBP
Inflation Report Hearings

People from the BoE are aware that the inflation rate is going down since late 2018 peak and I see this hearings pushing GBP down for the rest of the week

10:00am USD
CB Consumer Confidence
124.3 120.2
USD
Fed Chair Powell Testifies

USD had it rough last week and any positive tone and/or news from the trade talks with China will push USD up
Could be great to sell EURUSD and GBPUSD and getting better price to sell USDCAD later

Wednesday

LOTS of news on Wednesday, expects lots of volatility and wait for the bet prices/locations, could be wrong but this could be an excellent day to buy CAD

8:30am CAD
CPI m/m
0.2% -0.1%
CAD
Common CPI y/y
1.9% 1.9%
CAD
Median CPI y/y

1.8% 1.8%

CAD

Trimmed CPI y/y

1.9% 1.9%

Any green numbers here will be great to sell any CAD crosses, if so, will look for the better prices according from Pivots location

10:00am USD

Fed Chair Powell Testifies

???

7:00pm NZD

ANZ Business Confidence

-24.1

Business Confidence shows some uptrend so I think that if NZD has a tough start of the week it could bounce here

7:30pm AUD

Private Capital Expenditure q/q

1.1% -0.5%

Even if forecast looks good from previous report, last 4 reports where red numbers, could start a downfall for AUD for rest of the week

Thursday

USD

Advance GDP q/q

2.6% 3.4%

8:15pm USD

Fed Chair Powell Speaks

Don't know what to think about these 2 but something to be aware is the end of the month which could see a lot of profit taking...

Possibly a turning point for the new month

Friday

8:30am CAD

GDP m/m

0.0% -0.1%

USD

Core PCE Price Index m/m

0.2% 0.1%

USD

Personal Spending m/m

0.3% 0.4%

10:00am USD

ISM Manufacturing PMI

56.0 56.6

USD

Revised UoM Consumer Sentiment

96.1 95.5

Couple news here to be aware of but after the big wednesday/thursday volatility and profit taking, I expect this to be a quiet and ranging day

Calendar for the next week. Monday {image} Not much going on on Monday. Carney speaking due to press conference in London. I do anticipate more dovish stance but as I'm still not trading GBP I really don't care atm what he has to say. But I am waiting what happens to Brexit. MP's say that Brexit must be postponed when EU will not agree more appropriate agreement. So if they don't want to postpone Brexit, the agreement must be concluded this week. Much unlikely EU agrees to reopen negotiations. But expecting unexpected, very interesting indeed. Tuesday...

Davit, I am not new to trading but I am new to Forex as of a few months ago. I have studied countless hundreds of hours in a short amount of time trying to grasp the concept of currency trading. I have been reading all kinds of threads here on FF and I have downloaded and tried about a zillion indicators and kept thinking that I had found the perfect setup, meanwhile, I kept gaining and losing, mostly small gains and bigger losses. I didn't blow up my account or do anything stupid like that but I couldn't gain serious traction. I would slap indi's...

Trade demo until you get everything iron out even then reason its advance trading because dealing with real $$ changes everything hence you may technically know what to do but your trading psychology still not ripe yet.

Trust me it will take 2years minimum for you to grow balls and 5+yrs until you start bouncing them around without fear....

Quoting antisystem

Now it's time for me to say Thank you, Davit! Here's my stats for this year: {image} Pivot trading is an awesome strategy! It works & pays money) I modified your method to my personal issues but the core of the system is weekly fib pivots & your trading ideas. I followed your advice to pick several pairs & master them. Here's non-loss winning streak on USDCAD since the beginning of the year. {image} Thanks, Davit, for all you have done here on FF & particularly for me and for my trading!

great results 👍🍷

You should participate more often. On a side note my wife went to Russian School in Georgia. She is fluid in Russian and have many Russian friends myself mostly Artists....the interesting types 😊

My calendar events next week

Looking at events there are 3 key Currencies in Sharp focus next week

NZD USD CAD hence my trading will be focused on these.

Sun

NZD Retail Sales q/q 0.5% 0.0%

The economic calendar for next week gets an early start with key data from New Zealand during the Sunday Asian session.

This data release gets extra attention because it's a data set that we would typically expect to receive monthly. However, in New Zealand, we only get to see it quarterly.

Here's a look at what's been going on and what we might expect from the markets even before the weekend is over.

There are three versions of quarterly retail sales all coming out at the same time: Sunday 22:45 CET (or 16:45 EST). The data is relevant to the next publication out of New Zealand expected on Tuesday evening.

The start of the event is the quarterly change in retail sales. This is expected to accelerate to 1.3% growth, compared to the 0.0% reported previously. This is the figure the market usually focuses on.

Additionally, we have Core Retail sales, which exclude automotive-related purchases. This data is expected to increase by 2.1% compared to 0.4% prior.

Finally, we have the year over year comparison in retail sales. This is expected to have increased by 9.7% compared to 2.7% in the third quarter.

From all these data and the fact previous was 00 any + would be seen as positive hence bias is NZD gain but we'll see how this unfolds. Worst part this data is coming up so early in thinnest market time which normally creates long spikes..

Skimping GBP related news. Not really interested on this unless I see some great set up.

Tues

USD CB Consumer Confidence 124.3 120.2 green projection if true and Powell speaking same time could create nice thrusts up on USD like Example UC which was sold off heavy on last Friday and back to 32+

Fed Chair Powell Testifies-Every CEO, Feds head etc would only be singing the positives nobody goes to public says I am doing crappy job which Powell is doing by raising rates previously and making dollar too strong. This effects lots of industries negatively. He may get grilled by Democrats. Interesting to watch this.

Weds

CAD CPI 0.2% -0.1% pretty generous projection but remains to be seen. We could go yo yo UC up Tues reaching 3180-3225 then positive data on CAD then drop 3150 and lower.

Powell testifies again note CAD CPI is at 8.30 and Powell is at 10am this makes a difference which gets head start.

NZD ANZ Business Confidence

The ANZ Business Confidence Index in New Zealand rose to an eight-month high of -24.1 in December 2018 from -37.1 the previous month. Still, the latest reading continued to suggest firms remain pessimistic

Note upswing trajectory and anything below -24 most likely send NZD flying down.

Look at graph bottom of the post!

Thurs

USD Advance GDP q/q 2.6% 3.4% projection is red here and don't expect green considering retail sales were red overall and housing down.

This could provide nice opportunity to sell some USD like AU long UC shorts EU long skipping GBP

Friday

CAD GDP m/m 0.0% -0.1% Leaning green here myself despite of low oil prices.

USD ISM Manufacturing PMI 56.0 56.6 slight red and may print even reder.

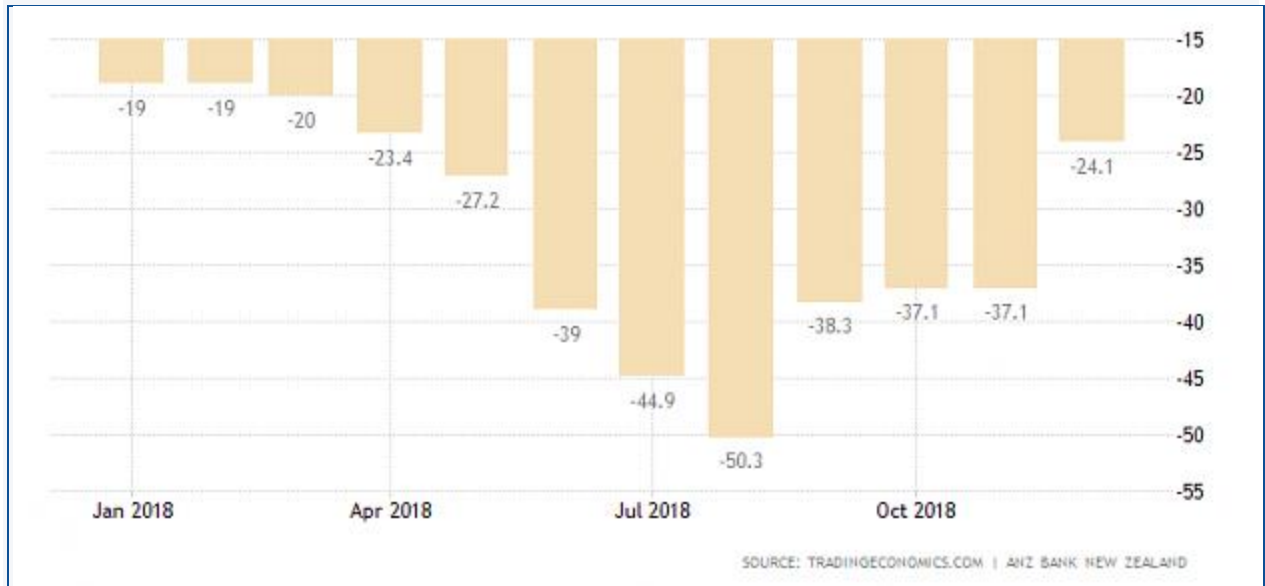

I see all these beautiful scenarios playing out in my head mostly around these key currencies but always open to strike where there are opportunities.

It is just beautiful doing this I am excited by just thinking about it and doing this every week is $$$

Lets have another killer week! At Pivots we make money that's our business! 🍀💰🍀🍀🍀🍀🍀

As a side note ANZ business confidence was a big mover as I remember. Something to be aware! That's Weds 7pm EST

My thoughts on next week. NZD Retail Sales q/q Looking forward to the NZD having some good action. I was thinking that the data would be better than expected, but there was the announcement "RBNZ Deputy Governor Geoff Bascand: Bank capital increase could lead to an eventual rate cut, plan may result in a marginal tightening in conditions" So I'm thinking might be a surprise in store for us. JPY SPPI y/y I'm thinking the JPY may be in the beginning of a very small recovery. I will be watching the JPY data all week very closely, if my suspicions are...

This is good! idea is you are building awareness of your own interpretation with the market. Does not mean what you think is necessarily prediction but what you think about events brings sharper focus how events shape price. This is more difficult to rationalize but intuitively you will see your PA reading and how pairs dance around and their connections to each other better understood by you.

Its given results of news are hard to predict before. That's not what this is about its building awareness how news events shape price and YOU in it instead of distant viewer. There is real tangible difference that I can't even articulate.

I get PM's people asking me about what I think about News etc. I have real hard time conveying it because its something you must do and find for yourself if its helping you or not although no true general goes to battle without plan and study of terrain.... Its a battle of outsmarting your opponent in basic level. You can't do that by being ignorant. Market always knows what's coming up and this is constant! Question is do you?

cheers 🍻👍🍻

Spike back to 1250-60 support zone likely specially during Powell testimonies Tues CB Consumer Confidence is same time 10am as Powell hence if CB prints green and Powell can't stop singing about economy how "incredible" it is expect USD bulls to come out swinging!

Knowing this its wise not buy Euro on Monday! This is why we are AWARE!

{quote} Where did you get this data from?

Hey 1pipperhour,

As I am trying to study the Fundamentals, I did find link to these stats by clicking the "Detail" on the Calender for the NZD News,

Attached Image (click to enlarge)

then the "Related Stores" which brought me to the link:

<https://www.orbex.com/blog/en/2019/0...4-retail-sales> that notes:

"The start of the event is the quarterly change in retail sales. This is expected to accelerate to 1.3% growth, compared to the 0.0% reported previously. This is the figure the market usually focuses on."

Of course, Davit looks at a lot of other sources as he has mentioned in the past i.e. FxLive, Bloomberg, CNBC, etc., besides FF News.

To simply my life for the moment, I am going to study High and Medium News for the coming week, and use my MS Excel (like yourself to analyze) then, use my MS Access to crutch some numbers trying to keep variables to a minimum for each News Type to see how the overall experts expected value or overall sentiment coincides with the actual News outcome data using the above and ideally, I would like to generate predictive values (using sensitivity and specificity) for each event over a month then quarterly:

This will be my simple approach to actual fundamental data. The harder thing is to figure out what a speaker or group meeting will turn out to be which really requires a broader knowledge and better understanding on the market. But, it is experience and hard work.

Anyway, I hope this helps.

Stay Green and Best Regards,

- John

Interesting that despite of Retail Sales q/q 1.7% NZD practically almost stayed the same. Shows a clue where this is heading rest of the week.

This gap may close next 24hrs

Tues Powell plus CB dble hit on this and rest of majors.

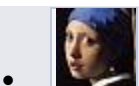

Been making shitload on every swing on NC shorts hence do want NC going up then short it. Its basically free money. 9080-91 Hit it

There is inherent weakness on NZD since there are hints rates may be cut in the future.

No this thread is about swings! Now that should put everything you wrote outside context of swings.

Weekly Pivots work perfectly with swings! Added bonus of news events are making our EDGE even greater!

I am not an investor parking my money for 3 months on a currency hence what you wrote is none factor what's going on here.

 This pattern you exhibit continues to February 2019. How many?
 I have some serious advice. You will not find what you are searching for.
 1. Get a new FF Handle.

2. Subscribe to Davit's Pivot Trading
3. Shed all that you think you know
4. Start from Page 1

5. With a clear mind you will surprise yourself.

Oh! I have been a full time trader since 2001 and introduced to FX 1987-88

There is no better system/methodology than what Davit offers. You can manage trades virtually stress free and with a high degree of confidence.

Well done bud. That was another textbook PA swing failure. Was pushed into the S138 end of last week, price barely touched below WP this week and took off like a rocket.

This setups are the lowest of low hanging fruit.

UJ slingshot to the upside out of consolidation and I took two tiny positions long but I finally have a day off and now I'm managing my trade from my phone because my internet is out thanks to high winds. This is teaching me to take screenshots Sunday night or early Mon morning of the trades I'm interested in just in case something like this happens. Now I don't know where my pivots are at because I usually let my trades run and manage TP's as I go. Is this stupid? How do you guys manage trades while on the move?

I work almost full time and don't trade from phone without issues.

It's typical swing. Price needs to go up so MM can make money then drop again MM make money. When it does not move nobody makes money.

Last week result: I have skipped some trade coz I did not notice or I was sleeping. Btw last week was enough good. On GC I have caught twice the movement from R100 & R78 it has given a good profit as you see. EU long: my bugbear. I have closed some trades in profit and in loss, overall in loss. I am holding from 06.02. and this f..ing negative interest is very high. My plan for the future EU long only for 1-2 days only not for 2-3 weeks. {image} For this week: GBP pairs I set apart. 26.02. Hi fibo38, in such a volatile market maybe is better your choice to close trades at a reasonable profit, otherwise now that GBP is rallying strong again you look at your profits to evaporate and you're left with DD to manage.

Pivot traders are those who believe that the exact value or price of a stock at any particular time is unknowable.

Dare I say: "Pivot traders are those that trade swings profitably. They are fully aware of news events, without making any predictions about them. They manage risks appropriately and are calm and collected during drawdowns, which they view as natural spasms of MMs running their stops. Pivot traders use a rubber-band theory, whereby prices tend to reverse after they've had a(n often MM-induced) run in one direction. Pivot traders don't trade GJ or F pairs, and they recognize that LOCATION, like in real estate, is everything. Hence, MAs are totally irrelevant, as are all oscillators and their divergence-related indicators. Pivot traders don't know the future, nor do they need to, to make money (Mark Douglas)."

Since we are on daily open subject. I look for price on a glance where the bias is. If it is under D O then market bias is bear if above bull however since true liquidity starts from London you must not make hasty assessment. Its there also for measuring pip distance moved from D O

Pairs that move well during Asia are obviously Asian currencies

Yen NZD AUD and their crosses. Other majors don't usually move much. This is why AUD/NZD can move great deal on Asia session.

{quote} Well done Davit. You make us all strive to be better with these results of yours. You sir, don't need to worry about a Retirement Annuity. This is something you can do for the rest of your life and something we all hope to be doing as good as you do it for the rest of our lives. My whole way of thinking about trading has changed and am slowly adapting. Trades are fewer for now but with better reward. Account up 20% for February. That is beating the banks' yearly interest through and through especially if maintained at this pace throughout...

Thank you friend posts like yours what keeps me going here. Just a few years ago this thread was attacked by losers and trolls accusing me of photoshopping my results etc but they are gone because that's what happens to losers market just churns them out and new blood gets in the stream.

Key is mastering A METHOD and perfecting it.

Great example is in the Arts

Abstract painter is great at abstraction but seldom rarely if ever is great at realism, figure painting same time and opposite. Jazz pianist is seldom great at classical music and opposite true. You must find what you good at by accident, intuition, search and once found perfect it.

To me there is no difference from Arts to Trading its all the same.

Thanks guys

Took me some time taking 2k then 10k to over 100k now. Its easier for me now because I paid my dues. Stuck with pivots (closest thing to golden Goose Egg) and implemented everything I inquired from books and my own experiences.

Being an Artist helped me I guess thinking creative ways to overcome market makers. Its a game that can be won! I am living example!

I have a talent I guess understanding that market events, price, technical aspects are interconnected. This comes from my background as an artist when you paint a figure you look at multiple things same time example expression, structure, lighting, texture, color, value etc. To me trading is an Art because in essence it is.

You need to grant me an exclusive interview.

So we can author that book inside you 😊

I'm dead-serious. The Title is "Paint by Pips" or just "Trading Arts".

Do you know of any other artists that are successful traders?

I'd like to explore the traits that an artist has that are exquisitely useful as a trader.
