- 4,589
- Cleanup
- Quote
- Mar 10, 2016 6:47am
-  dove_alliance
- Joined Jun 2007 | Status: Trading Live For The Last 14 Years. | 5,761 Posts

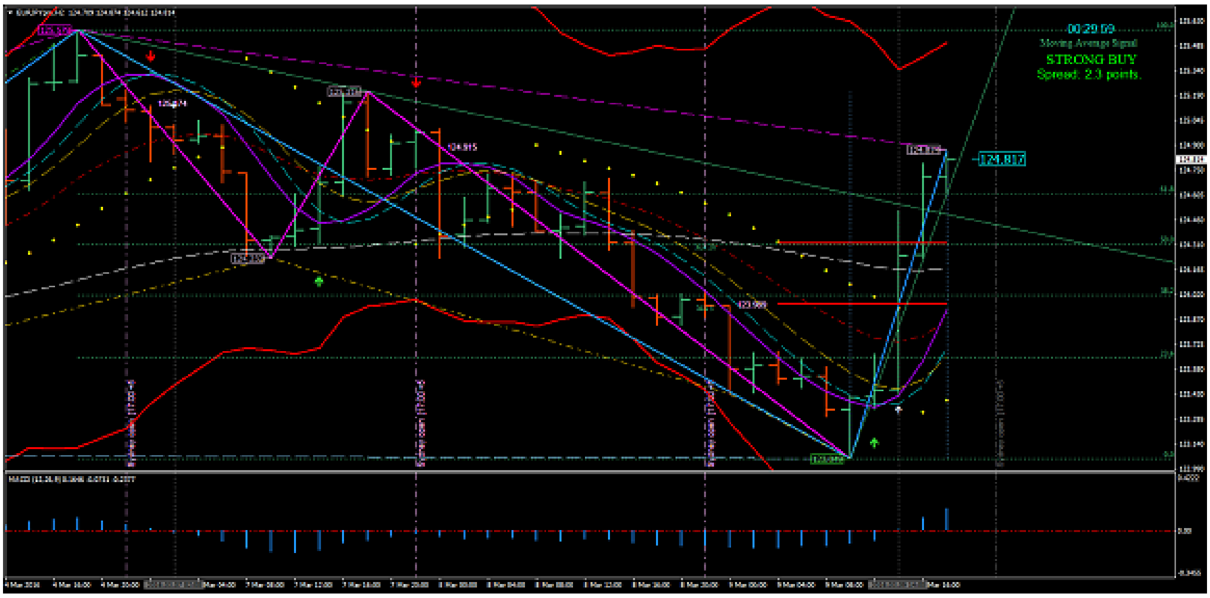
Traders - This might help you in how to use the 1 hour as reference for entries:

Looking at this 1 hour below you have a signal with the MACD '0' crossing at 07:00 this morning EST. This 1 hour crossing of the MACD is preparing you for the change of the swing. And I said prepare and not a diffident signal. On the 09:00 candle you have the EMA signal with the White/Purple crossing. On the 10:00 candle the Parabolic flip.

Attached Image (click to enlarge)

On this 09:00 of the 2 hour you have the MACD '0' crossing on the open candle at Smooth and was entry going long; with the 1 hour MACD crossing that had already alerted you two hours earlier. This entry was based totally on the opening of the 1 hour and then opening of the 2 hour MACD alerts.

Attached Image (click to enlarge)



The Dove - Forex Trainer